DONALD BRIAN MAKES AN AIRY,

Fred Zimmerman said it—Fred Ziminhtrman, manager of the Galety. (Eatiness Wednesdays and Saturdays.) "Do you notice how attentive Sam Harris is to the Collector of the Port?" said Mort Shea, behind his hand to Wallace Eddinger. "Watch him move the hole over to him when he putts. Sam's going to Europe negt spring if there isn't any more war and he thinks he can put something over on the Collector when he comes back. That fellow's always trying to put something over. He's worse than his partner, George Cohan. Sacrificed at the Willard Co.

"My Lady's Houdoir." When Hyams was putting the ball for the nine hole everybody burst into applause and he missed. The noise made him nevyous. He had taken coffee instead of ginger ale in the clubhouse. He missed four times. Dreadfull
They tried the same thing on Mort Shea, who has the string of vaude-ville shows. The applause didn't make him nervous. He has to have it in his business, he said. He takes to noise as naturally as a highball. The lonly trouble with him was he didn't know who was keeping his card. The Collector of the Port made a great collection of strokes. He said he made 10s. They didn't like to doubt his word. They didn't, in fact. But just to prove it he took all hands around the course in his automobile. That was the best drive of the day.

Music Makes the Heart Grow Cheery

During the Winter months what brings more solace to the brain-fagged father, the tired out mother or to the kiddies, than

"Just a song at twilight, When the lights are low?"

Music Indeed, bath its charms Music indeed, hath its charms. Whether a piano, a piano-player, a guitar, banjo, violin, mandolin, phonograph, or what-not in tl.s musical instrument line, the strains of some favorite air or the melody of a song are as restful to the grown-ups as a lullaby to a child.

OH, THAT LOVING CUP FOR THE

INVINCIBLES. Well, the four invincible golfters

Most youngsters put their clothes through paces that are severe and taxing. Having for many years studied the wearing conditions and necessities to which boys' clothing is subjected, we tailor them to withstand the strain and resist hard usage, not forgetting, in this sturdiness of service, the comfort, good-looks, and price advantages boys are entitled to.

Full stocks now of boys' Winter Suits, Overcoats, Ragians, Ulsters, Raincoats, Mackinaws, Hats and Furnishings.
